Abstract

The chopping control process is allowed without adding the chopping dedicated axis. To correct the chopping operation for a movement error in the contour control with the positioning axis or rotation axis, an interpolation processing part 12 and an axis control processing part 13 are provided with a function of generating the movement data for making chopping operation by controlling two or more axes at the same time and a function of correcting the chopping operation.